

John McClelland, Jr., of Longview, Wash., president of the national journalism fraternity Sigma Delta Chi, points out that in 10 American states today there isn't a single city with more than one newspaper.

The situation hasn't been brought about deliberately, he continues; instead, it is the involuntary result of the dizzy rise in the cost of machines, newsprint, labor and taxes.

While reading Mr. McClelland's remarks, as reprinted in the Anniston (Ala.) Star, I couldn't help but think of a shipment of Newfoundland newsprint which we unloaded in Hope earlier this month. It carried an invoice that was astounding.

Hope Star's sole contract is with Southland Paper Mills at Lufkin, Texas, where the railroad price to us is the same as charged the largest newspapers in America, $120 a ton delivered. This compares with a price as low as $41 a ton during the depression and $60 to $70 a ton in the late 1930's. But no newspaper is able to get from its contract-mill all the paper it has to have.

With the co-operation of Kelly Bryant, publisher of Hope Journal, we were able to pick up his unused 1951 newsprint allocation, on which the price has also been marked up, now $152 a ton delivered.

But I'm coming to that astronomical invoice from Newfoundland. It's $225 a ton delivered. And many months ago we were compelled, in order to assure an adequate supply of newsprint for 1952, to guarantee at least half of a 25-ton shipment from Finland at the same price this Newfoundland paper cost, $200 a ton plus freight.

So the picture confronting the average American small-city newspaper today is a newsprint supply purchased 70 per cent at $120 a ton and the balance at prices ranging from $152 to $225—against a pre-war range of $41 to $70 a ton.

The Anniston (Ala.) Star, confronted by the same situation that we are, makes this comment:

"Mr. McClelland's advice is, therefore, to stop grieving about one-newspaper towns, and furthermore, to stop thinking that a town which has only one newspaper necessarily suffers because of it. The Longview journalist takes the position that one newspaper can learn to serve a community adequately and even exceptionally well."

I might add to the Alabama and Washington comment this further remark, that whether a lone newspaper learns public service or not, it will eventually learn good business practice—or there won't be any typewriters or linotypes left to practice on.

What every city needs is less amateur advice about its existing institutions and more steam to build up the town itself.

If 10 American states have nothing but one-paper towns it's more an indictment of the industrial zeal of all citizens than of the newspapers.

Goodfellows to Give to Needy All Over County

A number of Hope Civic groups have organized a coordinated group for the purpose of assisting needy families this Christmas.

They are attempting this year to make this assistance county wide, and in order to facilitate the gathering of names of needy families they are asking the Churches to act as the agency to get those names.

Questionnaires to be filled out in detail the needs of each family are being sent to all churches throughout Hempstead county, and the churches are asking the churches to have these questionnaires filled out and return them to the Chamber of Commerce Office in Hope before December 10.

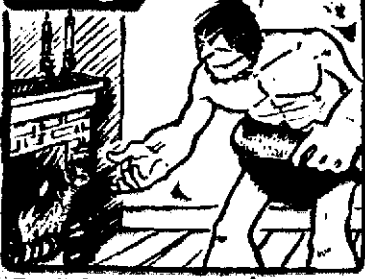

All individuals who know of needy families please contact your church and secure a questionnaire. Additional questionnaires may be picked up at the Chamber of Commerce office in Hope.

Mrs. Galloway to Teach SS Class

Mrs. E. D. Galloway will teach the Jett Graves Sunday School class of the First Methodist Church at 9:45 a. m. Sunday, December 2.

A "pinch" of arsenic added to lead alloys used to cover underground cables carrying electric power gives longer life and greater strength to the alloy. It also permits heavier electrical loads because higher pressure can be used for the insulating oil within them.

Sheridan, Nov. 30 (AP)—The Rev. William L. Arnold, 50, Little Rock minister was killed in a hunting accident near here yesterday.

Mr. Arnold, pastor of Little Rock's Highland Methodist church, was struck in the chest by a charge from his 12-gauge shotgun when the trigger apparently caught in a twig. A Grant county coroner's jury ruled his death accidental.

Nobody Hurt in Very Unusual Auto Accident

A very unusual accident yesterday left the front of a gasoline service station in shambles but three persons involved escaped without injury.

Owen Clark, 22-year-old youth of Texarkana, Mo., was driving a truck north on Highway 20, in the middle of the sharp curve that approaches a roadway underpass just south of Hope, the lad fell out of the truck.

The vehicle, carrying his mother and father, Mr. and Mrs. L. E. Clark, left the highway and crashed into Brown's service station, smashing both gasoline pumps before coming to a halt.

The truck's fender and bumper were bent. Damage to the station was very heavy.

$20 Million Arsenal Goes Up in Korea

Pusan, Korea, Nov. 30 (AP)—The Korean government arsenal here blew up today in a series of awesome blasts that spread damage across an area four miles wide.

American soldiers housed in the general area escaped injury, but U. S. Army authorities said six Koreans were killed and at least 50 were injured.

Korean authorities said 48 homes were destroyed, 100 others were badly damaged and 400 more were damaged in some degree. They estimated total damage at $20,000,000.

Civilian and army rescue workers dug in the ruins searching for possibly more victims.

Col. Lee Hong Chong, chief of the arsenal, said it was not known whether sabotage or a accident touched off the blasts that rocked this southeast port city and sent civilians fleeing from their homes in panic.

It was recalled, however, that a mysterious fire destroyed the U. S. embassy building in Pusan Monday. The North Korean Reds long have boasted they have agents in Pusan.

They said the arsenal, on Pusan's northern outskirts, was closed for the night and only guards were on duty.

The first explosion came at 4 a. m. Ammunition was blown high in the air and exploded in a tremendous fireworks display. Then came a second blast and a series of smaller ones. Giant flames licked the sky.

Debris whistled through the air and, with the tremendous blast, leveled dwellings clustered around the arsenal.

Defense Minister Lee Kee Poong appealed for United Nations civil assistance relief for the homeless, many of them war refugees.

The arsenal housing center for the U. S. Army was in the blast area. Some windows there were blown out, but authorities said there were no casualties.

The arsenal manufactured hand grenades. Large amounts of ammunition also were stored there. The building, about a quarter-mile long, was destroyed.

The arsenal was moved to Pusan from Yongdongpo, industrial suburb of Seoul, at the outbreak of the war. The U. S. Army has helped to expand it.

Suggests Ways and Means of Enjoying Yourself During a Full Fledged Air Alarm

By HAL BOYLE

New York—(AP)—The big city is patting itself on the back for the way it behaved during its first A-bomb alert.

At the screaming of the first air raid sirens the streets emptied magically. The people took to the nearest bomb shelters.

To get a New Yorker to do anything expected of him is quite an achievement, as he is by nature one of the most independent-minded creatures on earth, suspicious of any kind of "regimentation."

Of course, some did show an unfortunate tendency to cluster at skyscraper windows to watch the show, but that is also a characteristic of New Yorkers. They don't like to miss anything.

But generally they did quickly and calmly what the civil defense organization had instructed them to do—an indication of how they would react had the emergency been real. They are learning "the pattern of survival," the lesson all must learn who live in these times.

Although they joked about the situation, they remained in the shelters until the all-clear sounded.

One interesting sidelight, the employees of Tass, the official Soviet news agency, paid no attention to the demonstration. They kept right on sending dispatches to Moscow.

In an actual air raid it is hard to tell how people will react to it. Sometimes a population under steady bombardment becomes indifferent or blasphemous to danger. Many adopt a fatalistic attitude.

During the early days of the great air raids on London a number became blinded for life as a result of curiosity. Windows through which they had been watching the spectacle suddenly were blasted, filling their faces with glass shards.

It became a pastime with some to go up on rooftops to view the city at night, ringed with huge fires and reverberating with explosions.

Some people, suffering from claustrophobia, never were able to stand the mole-like existence in the shelters. Others, including the lonely, actually seemed to enjoy the companionship of the deep shelters in the "underground"—the London subway. They would go to sleep there whether there was an air raid or not, merely for the company.

A substantial portion of the civil defense, adopting the policy that "if a bomb has your name on it it will find you," remained cheerfully at bed during the nightly attacks. They figured it was about as pleasant a place to die as any.

On visits back to London from the front during the last war that is what I generally did. The luxury of lying between clean sheets in a soft bed meant more than the peril from possible death overhead.

Changes are always in your favor during an air raid.

After the Allies began their own tremendous bombardment of Berlin, the populace there came in time to adopt the same philosophy. One German lady told a friend of mine after the war:

"During your raids I used to sit in a warm bath sipping champagne. If I had to go, I wanted to go out as comfortable as possible."

Military Clique Takes Control in Thailand

Bangkok, Nov. 30 (AP)—Thailand's military clique today flatly abolished the constitution, dissolved parliament and seized control of the government in a bloodless overnight coup.

A nine-man, "state temporary administrative body" ousted the former government, then reappointed Premier Phibunsongram. He also was given the post of defense minister in the new cabinet.

There was no violence. The coup was carried out in the old-time tradition of pressure without bloodshed—in sharp contrast to the naval revolt last June and a coup in February, 1949.

The military clique announced it had acted in the interests of combating communism.

Repeated radio broadcasts declared the coup would have no effect on Thailand's foreign shore adopted in 1947 and reinstatement of the 1932 constitution gives increased power to the ruling group.

Under the old constitution which was restored, 50 per cent of the members of parliament are appointed by the government. It provides for only one house of parliament rather than two.

The sudden coup significantly occurred just three days before the returning of Phibun and his family from Switzerland.

Some observers said the coup might have been a move to forestall any over-enthusiastic demonstration by pro-royalist elements.

Motive for the coup was not clear. But there were indications that it was a move to solidify power by the military through the elimination of elements which might oppose it.

Military leaders who seized power include three ranking officers from the army, navy and air force. The army was in top position.

They issued a statement citing reports of corruption, opium smuggling and infiltration of Communists into high places.

It is not clear just what power Phibunsongram will have in the new government. It is understood he opposed the coup on grounds that it would damage Thailand's foreign relations.

The ruling clique insisted that Thailand's position in the world picture and the United Nations is unchanged.

Reds Build Up Forces; Ground War Dwindles

UN Refuses to Discuss Troop Withdrawal

Munsan, Korea, Nov. 30 (AP)—Allied truce negotiators today flatly refused even to discuss the withdrawal of troops from Korea until an armistice is signed.

They also made it clear the U. N. command will not modify its demand for (1) joint inspection teams behind the battle lines and (2) an immediate ban on strengthening front line troops.

"We are going to insist upon those principles," Vice Adm. C. Turner Joy, chief U. N. negotiator, told the Reds. "We are not going to agree to immediate withdrawal of U. N. command forces from Korea. It is that clear. The sooner it is clear, the sooner we will begin to make profitable use of the time of this conference."

Replying to Joy's 30-minute opening statement at Punnington, North Korean Lt. Gen. Nam Il reportedly called the Allied proposals "unreasonable and impractical."

He said joint inspection teams would be "brazen interference with the internal affairs of the other side."

Joy replied sharply: "Only the side objecting to such joint observation can have any ulterior motive."

Nam Il charged the Allies "no buildup" proposal was an attempt to prevent the economic rehabilitation of Korea.

Even as Red negotiators fought to block Allied efforts to limit the strength of both armies, U. N. planes spotted a record 9,200 trucks pushing men and equipment toward the Communists' front lines.

An official U. N. spokesman, Brig. Gen. William P. Nuckols, said there was no mention at Friday's session of the comparative quiet which has settled over the battle field.

The U. N. command communique described the session in terms frequently used during the long deadlock over fixing the cease-fire line: "No progress."

Negotiators meet again at Punnington Saturday at 11 a.m. (9 p.m. EST Friday).

Both sides have presented their plans for supervising and enforcing the armistice—item three on the agenda.

They are similar except for the U. N. demand for guarantees to prevent a Red buildup.

The Red proposal made no mention of inspection teams nor did it set up a barrier to increasing forces during an armistice.

Joy said the U. N. command agrees in general with the Communist principles, but they were not broad enough.

He also took exception to a Red proposal for withdrawing troops from islands off the North Korean coast. Joy said the Allies intend to stay there until the Korean problem is settled.

The Fifth Air Force said no Allied planes were lost.

Nine of the Red craft shot down were propeller-driven bombers and fighter-bombers, the first caught in a mass flight beyond the Manchurian border.

Near the close of a blazing air battle of aerial warfare, 31 U. S. Sabre jets spotted 10 MIG-15s flying top cover on 30 propeller-driven Russian-type planes.

The Sabres dove directly into the flight of 12 TU-2s twin engine bombers and 18 LA-9 single engine fighter-bombers. Then they swooped, and cut the flight of MIGs in two and dove down again to finish the slower conventional craft, was one long, deadly sweep.

The result was ten Reds shot down—six TU-2s, three LA-9s, one MIG—and three twin-engine bombers damaged.

The Reds were caught just after they crossed the Yalu river, apparently on a training flight.

The 30-minute battle was the fourth air fight of the day and the biggest of any type—jet or propeller planes—fought in the Korean war. The earlier flights counted for the probable loss of four damaged Red.

Planes Blast Red Trucks Moving Up

Seoul, Korea, Nov. 30 (AP)—American Sabre jet pilots won the greatest air battle of the war today, reporting a total haul for the day of ten Red planes shot down, four damaged and one probably destroyed.

The Fifth Air Force said no Allied planes were lost.

Won't Draft Reserves in College

Washington, Nov. 30 (AP)—A memorandum which virtually defers the draft of all college students now in army reserve officer training camps (ROTC) units was signed yesterday by Anne Rosenberg, assistant secretary of defense.

Aides of Mrs. Rosenberg said the memorandum told the army it could order local draft boards to defer up to 129,500 men in ROTC units.

Congress last year gave the secretary of defense the right to order the deferments and to set deferment quotas for the various services.

Until yesterday's order the number the army could order deferred was somewhat lower than the number strayed and 13 damaged against on U. S. plane shot down and three damaged.

Friday's great battle climaxed a week of increasing Red jet flights into North Korea and an air battle in the Yellow Sea.

Long convoys of Red trucks were spotted last night racing toward the front lines.

No one questioned at how many more Red trucks might have passed on the roads without being spotted. Two thousand trucks are spotted on an average heavy night.

The Red's phenomenal rush to build up supplies and personnel troops came as the ground front went through their third day of "lightning war" and Red forces again halted at guaranteeing against an increase in their forces during an armistice.

Returning pilots reported they destroyed 300 Red trucks and damaged an unlimited number.

FEAF suggested contributing factors to the unprecedented number of trucks could be (1) exceptional clear weather and (2) such heavy damage to Communist rail lines that the Reds had to take to the highways.

Men enrolled in the army ROTC units. This allowed draft boards to take a number of men who were in the units.

Since these training units are the army's major source of officers, it requested the defense secretary to change the quotas.

There are 237 colleges with army ROTC units.

Mrs. Rosenberg's memorandum said that 53,000 men could be deferred in the first year basic ROTC class, 39,000 in the second year basic, 30,500 in the first year advanced class and 18,000 in the second year advanced. The four groupings correspond roughly to the four college classes.

The present enrollment in the last three groups is slightly lower than the quotas Mrs. Rosenberg authorized.

To get into an army ROTC unit, a student has to do a sign up when he enters college.

Actually Mrs. Rosenberg's memorandum allows only an additional 3,700 deferments more than the army's previous quota. But it shifts the various class quotas around so that it increases the first and second year basic class quotas by 12,000 and 15,000 respectively. It was in these groups that the draft boards were drawing off draftable men.

The last two ROTC class quotas were lowered, but since the enrollment in these classes had not reached the deferment quotas it makes little difference in the training of officers.

Little Rock, Nov. 30 (AP)—The Arkansas health department plans an investigation of nursing homes throughout the state.

A department official said yesterday some of the 19 Arkansas licensed nursing homes for the aged do not meet the minimum

His assertion came last night after testimony that Caudle received $3,000 as a commission on the sale of an airplane to a private investigator working for the two New Yorkers.

Committee Counsel Adrian W. Brown said he understood there were a number of "anonymous letters" in the files of the justice department alleging that a tax case against Samuel Aaron and Jacob Frosch of New York "was to be fixed."

King said the department would be asked to supply the documents to the subcommittee.

The committee has been questioning Caudle all week on his activities as head of the department tax division. Caudle was fired two weeks ago by President Truman for "outside activities" deemed incompatible with his office.

At the center of the Aaron-Frosch testimony was a letter sent to U. S. Attorney Irving Saypol of New York a few days before Aaron and Frosch went to trial in October, 1950. Saypol could not be reached for comment.

The letter, signed by Turner L. Smith, then Caudle's top aide, said that if a medical report on Aaron's health had been presented to the justice department before the case went to the U. S. attorney, the report would have caused the justice department to refuse to prosecute Aaron.

According to a memorandum from a bureau of internal revenue agent, the letter was dispatched after Caudle and Charles Oliphant, chief counsel of the internal revenue bureau, agreed that Aaron "should not be prosecuted" because of the medical findings.

But neither Caudle nor Oliphant could remember their reported agreement or the letter when asked by the committee. Nor could Caudle's former aides in the justice department, when called in turn, recollect the letter or who ordered it. The agent, Richard C. Schwartz, has not yet testified.

He announced when yesterday's hearings ended that he was calling to Attorney General McGrath's attention "there is an im-

Judges Not to Seek More Tax Money--Yet

Little Rock, Nov. 30 (AP)—The Arkansas County Judges Association isn't getting behind a move to seek to take more tax dollars out of your pockets. Not just yet, at least.

Pulaski County Judge Arch Campbell would like to see an amendment to the state constitution providing for a county tax limit to 10 mills on every dollar of assessed property valuation.

Opposition centered up on the floor, however, and the matter was referred to a committee for further study.

Before the road tax can be levied now, it must be approved by voters. "This is a long time to raise this money," said Campbell, "but I am willing to wait."

Campbell, taking note of the resistance in his county, proposes in addition to raising the limit, removal of the necessity of a vote by the citizens. His suggestion is for county money to be levied on the tax of the rate of their choice, up to 1 mill.

Arkansas County Judge Fred S. Wilcox, called Campbell's plan "excellent" and said "the people in my county are longing for the privilege to assess more millage for road purposes."

Johnson County Judge Virgil C. Klob, agreed, adding that most taxpayers in his county may pay six mills for roads—three mills under the constitutional limitation and three mills voluntary.

But Crittenden County Judge W. R. Ingram, insisted:

"This is the wrong time to raise millage. The movement now is to raise property assessments. City property is now carrying the tax load. If we can get the land assessments up, we will have money for schools, roads and services of government."

Another opponent to the Campbell plan, Desha County Judge J. L. Erwin, argued that taxing land to support roads was an antiquated and archaic system, and that "those who use the roads for their means of livelihood" should bear major road costs.

The association president, White County Judge Floyd E. Bradberry, named Campbell as the head of a committee to study the proposed amendment further, along with other possible means of increasing revenue. The committee is to report to the association's executive committee.

In addition to raising the tax rate limit, Campbell's plan would abolish the per capita road tax—a flat $3 charge per person. It was pointed out that service veterans and persons over 45 are exempt from this tax, anyway.

AEC Winds Up Atomic War Tests

Las Vegas, Nev., Nov. 30 (AP)—America's atom masters, satisfied that they have found new facts of nuclear know-how, closed the book today on the 1951 fall test series.

The atomic energy commission and the army wound up their joint show with an afternoon blast yesterday. It was the seventh and one of the least spectacular of a series that started Oct. 22.

Unofficially it was the 57th atomic explosion in history, all of off by the U. S. but Russia's admitted three.

Test Manager Carroll L. Tyler said the series produced "data important to the nation's military security."

"Each nuclear detonation resulted in increased atomic weapons knowledge," Dr. Alvin C. Graves, AEC scientific director, reported.

The final burst, a low blast of red fireball with black, was unlike any of the previous explosions and caused speculation that the detonation might have been the first in a new series of nuclear tests.

The AEC could not confirm this, and the slight confusion indicated a burst at ground level was unlikely.

The finale was witnessed by a multi-staged military cast headed by Gen. J. Lawton Collins, army chief of staff, and a group of congressional observers.

For the third time, troops from Camp Desert Rock took part in the test, although not in a tactical maneuver. The series hit a high note Nov. 1 with the first atomic ma-

Medical Auxiliaries of Sevier, Polk, Howard, and Pike counties. After the luncheon Mrs. James G. Martindale spoke on "Auxiliary Plans and Projects for the Year" to about forty-five doctor's wives.

DOROTHY DIX Who Has Priority?

Dear Miss Dix: For four months I have been going with a boy who has asked me to marry him. However, he has confused me by announcing that he is going to spend Christmas with his sisters. His mother died eleven years ago and his two older sisters raised him. Don't you think he should want to be with me instead of them? This isn't the first time his sisters have come here. In fact, we even broke up over them one time, but we went back together after two days.

Answer: Since you are old enough to contemplate marriage, you should be mature enough to have acquired some perspective on human relationships. Family ties do not melt away just because a boy has fallen in love with a girl; it would be most tragic if they did. Your friend's sisters have done a fine job of bringing up a younger brother in addition to raising their own families, and he would be guilty of gross ingratitude if he forgot them so easily and so completely.

Your Demands Excessive
An acquaintance of only four months is a very weak justification for the proprietary rights you wish to exercise over your friend's time and affections. If your demands in this matter are indicative of your whole attitude, you are laying a very poor foundation for a good marriage. Let your ego be a little more submerged in the give and take, bear and forbear of matrimony if you want harmony and happiness in your future home.

I'm sure you have a family of your own; they will want you around for Christmas and would probably feel very indignant if you deserted your own home for the holiday.

The perfect solution for your problem would be for each of you to spend part of the day with the other's family. Or, have your friend come to your house for the evening. If distance or other factors make it impossible for your friend to spend the day at his sisters', and don't fuss about it.

Dear Miss Dix: For the past never in history. The G.I.'s are used to outline positions and locate material and field equipment for the last two tests, designed especially to determine effects on their items and various structures, such as houses and bridges.

Animals were tested earlier. For security reasons there will be no further report on the tests, Tyler said, except for some information on effects which may be released by the AEC after analysis and screening.

The AEC's Nevada test site, including both Frenchman and Yucca Flats, was first used in the 1951 winter series last January and February. Its next use probably will come next spring, when a series of nuclear tests for civilian defense leaders has been tentatively planned.

To hold all the natural gas in America's 314,000 miles of pipelines would require 100 tanks the size of the Empire State Building in New York City or a single tank half a city block in diameter and 30 miles high.

Governor Defends 2 Projects

Little Rock, Nov. 30 (AP)—Sid McMath spoke out twice yesterday in defense of his No. 1 project as governor of Arkansas—highway construction.

Angrily, he told the Arkansas County Judges association last night:

"All of the highway revenue has not been stolen, misused, wasted and sent down the rathole. Believe it or not, the highway commission has spent some money on the roads in Arkansas."

Earlier in the day, the governor told reporters he thought the state highway department "has been operating as efficiently as possible."

Atty. Gen. Joe Murry, who is expected to run for governor next year, has been criticizing the highway department's operations, charging "waste and inefficiency" and urging that the highway commission be removed from politics.

McMath, now in his third year as the state's chief executive, reported in his address before the county judges that his administration had put 2,040 miles of roads under construction at a cost of $50 million.

He said by the time his second term in office is completed in January, 1953, 2,400 miles of roads will have been built, adding this was more than had been built in the 24 years before he took office.

The governor said better highways are increasing the state's highway revenues. Those revenues, he reported, amounted to $26.5 million in the bond year ended April 1, 1949; $33 million last year and probably will hit $35 million this year.

"Revenues have increased to such an extent that it now appears it will not be necessary to issue the last $7 million bond issue in the four-year highway program."

Vatican Accepts Farouk as Ruler

Cairo, Egypt, Nov. 30 (AP)—The Vatican apparently has accepted Farouk as the ruler of the displaced Sudan as well as king of Egypt.

A foreign office spokesman said yesterday the Vatican has agreed to accept a new Egyptian minister to the Holy See bearing credentials styling Farouk king of Egypt and the Sudan.

Britain sharply disputes Farouk's right to extend his reign to the Sudan, the vast African territory to the south of Egypt, which has been ruled jointly by British and Egypt since 1929. The United States has spent some money on the Sudan, the British stand.

Egypt cancelled the 1899 agreement last month and on Oct. 16 the Egyptian parliament expanded Farouk's title to include the Sudan.

The change in title has delayed official recognition of several new foreign diplomats, who were accredited before the change but arrived afterwards with documents referring only to the king of Egypt.

Almud Rashid Bey, now Egyptian ambassador to Belgium, is the new minister accepted by the Vatican.

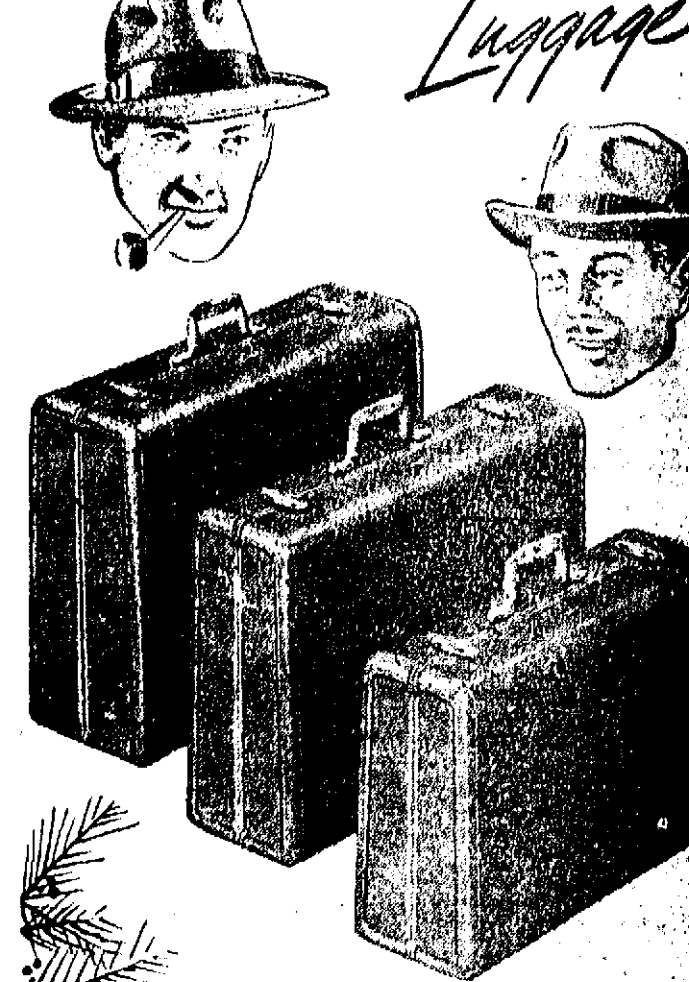

"Revenues have increased to such an extent that it now appears it will not be necessary to issue the last $7 million bond issue in the four-year highway program."

Truman's Visit Means Money to Florida

Key West, Fla., Nov. 29 (AP) — Most Key West merchants expressed the hope today that President Truman will stay here until Christmas.

He's money in the bank to them.

"The President's visits have given Key West a terrific shot in the arm," Secretary Harry Laubacher of the Chamber of Commerce told a reporter.

Others chimed in with the opinion that Mr. Truman is the biggest business asset this town has had since it lost its major cigar business to Tampa and its major sponge business to Tarpon Springs.

Mr. Truman doesn't expect to stay here until Christmas, but he expects him to return to Washington before the middle of December, that would make for both the longest of his visits here.

One shoe merchant observed:

"I don't go for him politically, but I have to put my politics aside when I see what he does for business in this town."

The chamber of commerce secretary said that since the President

first came here five years ago, the building and construction business has increased to the tune of nearly a million dollars each year and that the increase for 1951 will be far greater.

Sebastian Cabre, who operates the Caribe restaurant, where Mr. Truman dropped in unexpectedly for a cup of coffee yesterday, said the place where it now stands had been a seed grown for since 1889.

"And if it hadn't been for that man," he added, "this restaurant wouldn't be standing here. Cabre has put an autographed dollar bill from the President. And he won't let his dishwasher touch the copy from which Mr. Truman drank."

Everybody concedes that the big naval base here means more money than the tourist trade.

When the President flew into Key West, reporters, radio correspondents and photographers flocked to cover his operations. Their flock here from all parts of the state brought a glimpse of the coast even to the hotel, the ship, and the harbor.

"But the fact that the President comes here keeps Key West in the tourist papers all around the country and makes it better known all the year around," said J. D. McAndrew, manager of the La Casa hotel.

"Tourism," he added, "has increased steadily ever since the president made his first trip."

McAndrew said, "He has put Key West on the map."

One storekeeper in this town of 10,000 had other words to describe the presidential visit:

"That man has attracted more attention to Key West than the biggest Ernest Hemingway (the author who used to live here) and the sailfish." And he added "that every pay is the steady money for the merchants."

Max Marmonstein, owner of the Casa Marina hotel, is open all his season Saturday, nearly three weeks earlier than usual. He has requests for reservations are coming in ten to one ahead of last year.

Treatment of Mex Labor Investigated

Memphis, Tenn., Nov. 29 (AP) — A report on an investigation into how Mexican workers were treated by a Tennessee plantation owner has been filed with the Mexican embassy in Washington.

Angel Colon, consul here, said that night he would make no public statement on the contents of the report. He said a copy of the report also was filed with the department of labor.

Embassy and labor department spokesmen in Washington indicated the case was still under study.

The point U. S. Mexican probe was opened last Friday after nearly 70 Mexican laborers died on the W. T. Jamison plantation near Tiptonville, Tenn., and started a long walk back toward home.

Jamison sharply denied their complaints of poor housing, food and pay.

He imported the men under the usual contract negotiated by the U. S. government with Mexico. There are thousands of such laborers in the cotton belt.

One of the old timers of musical comedy, Thilo Fyngman, celebrated her 75th birthday today.

Life is still fun, even though she has been confined to her bed by illness for the past two years, she told reporters.

Looking over her many presents and birthday cards, the white haired trouper said prayer has kept her "young and hopeful."

people since he was elected to the senate in 1946.

McCarthy in turn has called Benton's accusations "sneaky charges" designed to block "my campaign to expose Communists in government."

Senator Margaret Chase Smith (R-Me), a member of the subcommittee, said putting off action on the Benton resolution until January was all right with her under the circumstances.

"The staff investigation" of Senator Benton's charges apparently is proving a bigger job than had been anticipated, Mrs. Smith said. "I think it is absolutely necessary that the investigation be thorough."

Mrs. Smith last year wrote a "declaration of conscience" which was generally regarded as a criticism of McCarthy's methods in pressing his charges that Communists and Red sympathizers had infiltrated the state department.

Because of that, McCarthy had said Mrs. Smith should take no part in consideration of the Benton resolution. She put it up to the full rules committee, which gave her a vote of confidence.

This is a day of reckoning. This is a day of exactness. This is a day when every man must stand up and be counted. Whether you are a watchmaker or a grinder of high-powered lenses... you've got to be good. God demands our best. He is not satisfied with average products. To be out of measurement means the whole of what you are doing is useless. Precision grinding is expected of you if you are to be trusted with the operation of this highly efficient machine. Spiritual Precision is necessary if you are to walk with God.

We also are to work in the field of sensitive minds, hearts, nerves and spirits. This is the realm of spiritual and eternal values. Flesh and blood persons are to be dealt with. Am I as careful in moulding the life of a child as in creating a watch, or a lens, or a pilotless plane? There is no better place to learn of the fundamental workings of God than at the little Church on the corner. Here, you will hear the Master Workman, as he says, "Inasmuch as you did it unto one of the least of these, you did it unto me."
